INTERSECTIONS OF IDENTITIES

Difference and Coalition in a Transnational Context

The Ray Browne Conference on Cultural and Critical Studies

March 17-19, 2017

Bowling Green State University | Bowling Green, Ohio

Keynote Speaker: Staceyann Chin

Staceyann Chin is a spoken-word poet, performing artist, activist, and novelist. Chin is the author of The Other Side of Paradise: A Memoir (2009, Scribner) and "Authenticity," a chapter in Rebecca Walker's edited work Black Cool: One Thousand Streams of Blackness (2012, Soft Skull Press). Chin recently performed in and wrote MotherStruck, a play directed by Cynthia Nixon. Her work has been published in the New York Times, the Washington Post, and the Pittsburgh Daily. She was also featured on the The Oprah Winfrey Show, where she shared her struggles growing up as gay in Jamaica.

In addition to performing in and co-writing the Tony-nominated Russell Simmons Def Poetry Jam on Broadway, Chin has appeared in Off-Broadway one-woman shows and at the Nuyorican Poets Cafe. She has also held poetry workshops worldwide. Chin's poetry can be found in her first chapbook, Wildcat Woman containing "Stories Surrounding My Coming" and numerous anthologies, including Skyscrapers, Taxis and Tampons, Poetry Slam, Role Call, and Cultural Studies: Critical Methodologies. Chin currently teaches a seminar at the arts-oriented Saint Ann's School in Brooklyn and is working as a part-time faculty member at New York University.

Speaking at 12:40 p.m. on Saturday, March 18, at 206 Bowen-Thompson Student Union Theater

Keynote Speaker: Laurenn McCubbin

Laurenn McCubbin is a large-scale, immersive installation artist, documentarian, and Associate Professor of Foundations at Columbus College of Art & Design in Columbus, Ohio. She has worked as a designer and illustrator, publishing several comic books and graphic novels with McSweeney's, Marvel Comics, DC Comics, Image Comics, Last Gasp, and Dark Horse.

She has always been fascinated by the fluidity and flexibility of gender expression and presentation, along with how outsider communities are simultaneously celebrated and denigrated for moving outside of social norms. As an artist, she has worked to find ways to weave elements of this dichotomy into her work. Having spent the last decade examining sexual culture and commodification, she is now looking to see how these very human patterns are playing out in other alternative communities. Her works have looked at the interactions of the sex industry with other economic forces at play within the Las Vegas entertainment complex, an autoethnographic work that explored the boundaries between herself as observer and as subject, as well as exploring the idea of "performative emotionality" and the cultural production of sexuality.

Speaking at Noon on Sunday, March 19, at 206 Bowen-Thompson Student Union Theater

“Popular culture is the voice of democracy, democracy speaking and acting, the seedbed in which democracy grows. Popular culture democratizes society and makes democracy truly democratic. It is the everyday world around us: the mass media, entertainments, and diversions. It is our heroes, icons, rituals, everyday actions, psychology, and religion — our total life picture. It is the way of living we inherit, practice and modify as we please, and how we do it. It is the dreams we dream while asleep”

— Ray Browne

The Ray Browne Conference on Cultural and Critical Studies is dedicated to the memory of Dr. Ray Broadus Browne (1922-2009), a visionary and pioneer in the academic study of popular culture. A folklorist and literary scholar, Dr. Browne was instrumental in the expansion of popular culture studies and founded the Center for Popular Culture Studies, the BGSU Department of Popular Culture, the Popular Press (now at the University of Wisconsin), the Popular Culture Association, the Journal of Popular Culture, and the Popular Culture Library, which now bears the names of he and his wife, Alice Maxine “Pat” Browne (1932-2013).
