Community School Applicant and Sponsor Process & Interview

Introduction

This guidance outlines Bowling Green State University's approach to conducting interviews of community school applicants and, when necessary, their current sponsor. Well-structured, face-to-face interviews help Bowling Green State University evaluate whether an application meets the criteria for approval and the likelihood it will lead to a high quality school. The interview will take place after formal submission of the application. The Bowling Green State University Application Review Team will complete individual, initial evaluations of the application prior to inviting the applicant to participate in an interview. Based on the quality of the applicant's proposal and the applicant interview, Bowling Green State University will make recommendations to its governing board regarding each application.

Participation

The interview team will be composed of the Bowling Green State University Application Review Team, including internal staff and external reviewers if needed. The applicant will have substantial discretion to determine both how many and which individuals best represent the proposed school. The applicant group should reflect the leadership of the community school effort, yet be small enough so each person will contribute substantively. Bowling Green State University will provide applicants with specific guidance designed to help determine which representatives should participate.

Planned Interview Structure

The interview team and the applicants will be provided an outline of the interview structure. Within this framework, interviewers have broad discretion to pursue the topics and questions, which they consider to be of particular importance. Interviews are not scripted and applicants should be prepared to discuss all aspects of an application including the education program, organizational plan, and financial plan.

Interviews typically include a combination of standard questions the interview team asks all applicants and application-specific questions prompted by questions or concerns raised by the application. While the stock questions help start the conversation, the most important questions are the specific follow-ups, which seek clarification or elaboration on the content of the application.

455B Education Building Bowling Green, OH 43403 All representatives of the applicant group should have a meaningful opportunity to respond to questions, as appropriate. Unless the question is clearly directed at an individual (e.g., asking a particular director about his/her previous experience), the applicants should decide how to structure their responses.

Interviews will generally be up to ninety minutes in length and typically will proceed roughly as follows:

Topic	Time Allotted
Introduction and Overview	5-10 minutes
Applicant Introductions and Opening Statement	5-10 minutes
Questions and Discussion	60-70 minutes
Review of Next Steps and Opportunity for Applicant Questions	10 minutes

Ending the Interview

Applicants may have questions, which can be answered before discussing the next steps. However, Bowling Green State University will not respond to questions about how the application was rated nor the assessment of their interview.

Next Steps

The interview team will inform the applicants about the timing for an application decision. Bowling Green State University appreciates the applicant's efforts and recognizes the amount of time and energy put into the application and interview.

Interview Preparation Form

The primary purposes of the interview are to probe questions or concerns raised by the application and to evaluate the capacity of the applicant group to successfully implement the plan. The Interview Preparation Form is designed to prepare the interview team for an effective interview specifically based on the information provided in the application.

Interview Introduction Script

Good [morning or afternoon], my name is ______, and I will be serving as the chairperson for your interview.

First, let me congratulate your team for being invited to participate in this process, and thank you for dedicating your time and efforts toward creating a community school.

As you know, it is a rigorous process to be approved to open a community school, and in the end, only a few of the original number of applicants will have the opportunity to open a school. We thank you for committing to and engaging in this competitive process.

Please allow me to go over a few details about this interview, and then we will allow the interview team to introduce themselves, which will be followed by introductions and an opening statement from your team.

This interview will last up to 90 minutes. We will take 5 to 10 minutes for introductions and an opening statement from your team, approximately 70 minutes on questions regarding your application, and 10 minutes to answer your questions and discuss next steps.

Interviewers have read your application and developed questions based on the information provided so we can get both more information and clarifying information today.

We would like to set a few ground rules for the question portion of the interview. Your team should:

- Designate a primary respondent for each question. (The primary respondent may vary depending on the topic.)
- Expect to spend two to three minutes on the initial response to a question, allowing time for follow- up.
- Feel free to ask for clarification.

We have a number of topics to cover. Therefore, if we limit your response, it is in the interest of making sure you have a chance to respond to other questions or concerns.

After the interview, the interviewers will make recommendations to our governing board based on your written application and this interview as to whether your team should be considered to open a community school.

Those recommendations will factor into the final decision of whether to approve your application. Let us begin with introductions, starting with the interviewers.

[Interviewer introductions]

Please introduce your team and, if you would like, give us a brief overview of your vision for the school. Be sure your introductions include what role you have played in the application process, as well as what role you intend to have if the school is approved.
